DETAILED ACTION

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification indicates the claimed low capacitance isolation tub to be the element (10) in figure 3/5. However, there is no capacitance in that structure since there is no second capacitive plate as layer (46) is taught to be a resist that is etched off to converge to the structure of figure (6). The specification fails to show said capacitance isolation by clearly defining the capacitive plates of the same.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential steps, such omission amounting to a gap between the steps. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted steps are: the formation of said low capacitance isolation tub in contrast to said plurality of shapes. The problem is even exasperated when the claim language is compared to figure 4 where capacitance region (10) is isolated from the component region (31) by an isolation region (34). It so seems like trench capacitors are formed as in figure 8 composed of the substrate, the overlying dielectric layer, and the polysilicon (73) as the second plate suggesting that the trenches could have been strictly formed to make capacitors. In the absence of a defined isolation capacitance in the structures, it is not clear how an isolation capacitance could have been formed from the "plurality of shapes" understood by the examiner as the trenches that end up being trench capacitors. In light of the above uncertainty, it is unclear as to how the isolation region, the component regions and the capacitance region of figure 4 are related to said isolation tub and said plurality of shapes in the independent claim.
